

NEWS LETTER

COLLEGE OF APPLIED SCIENCE MAVELIKARA

The College of Applied Science Mavelikara enthusiastically observed International Yoga Day on June 20th, 2025, a day dedicated to promoting the holistic benefits of yoga for a healthier and more balanced life. This year's theme, "Yoga for One Earth, One Health," resonated deeply with our commitment to well-being and community spirit.

The celebrations commenced with an inspiring inauguration ceremony. We were honored by the gracious presence and guidance of renowned Yogacharyan P. N. Karunakaran and Smt. Valli. Their insights into the practice of yoga set a serene and purposeful tone for the event, enriching the experience for all participants.

Students and faculty actively engaged in a revitalizing yoga session, led by Yogacharyan Karunakaran. The session focused on various fundamental asanas and breathing exercises (pranayama) designed to improve physical flexibility, mental clarity, and overall harmony. Participants eagerly embraced the opportunity to connect with their inner selves and experience the profound, calming impact of yoga.

The event powerfully underscored the importance of integrating yoga into daily life for stress reduction, improved focus, enhanced physical fitness, and fostering a sense of inner peace. The College of Applied Science Mavelikara is proud to champion a culture of health and holistic well-being among its community members.

The College of Applied Science Mavelikara also significantly observed Vayana Dinacharanam (Reading Day) on June 19th, 2025, commencing at 9:00 AM. This important day commemorates the death anniversary of the late P.N. Panicker, widely revered as the 'Father of the Library Movement' in Kerala, and serves as a powerful initiative to propagate and encourage the invaluable habit of reading among all sections of society.

The Vayana Dinacharanam celebrations were inaugurated by the esteemed Sri. Muralidhara Kurup, a renowned literary figure (സാഹിത്യ പ്രവർത്തകൻ). His inaugural address inspired attendees with insights into the power and joy of reading. The event was presided over by Dr. Aysha V., Principal of College of Applied Science Mavelikara, who delivered an insightful presidential address, emphasizing the crucial role of reading in personal and academic development.

